The MSc Process Management and Industrial Engineering specialization comprises a set of activities related to the planning and monitoring the performance of mainly implementation-based business processes. Thanks to the knowledge gained during the study, it is possible to eliminate all the disadvantages of functional business management, where each unit is focused only on its specialized area, which has a negative impact on the entire organization.

The MSc Process Management and Industrial Engineering includes the following beyond the basic and optional modules: Process Management, Industrial Engineering and Information Management.
