Managerial Psychology

The MBA Managerial Psychology is provided online in English. It focuses on the role of psychology in managerial practice and personnel management. An integral part of managerial work is the ability to listen and understand your colleagues and subordinates. As part of the educational modules, students will therefore learn to apply psychological methods and theories in practice and to use psychological procedures in the internal processes of a company or organization.

The specialization also deals with the importance of balance between personal and work life and the transfer of personal and spiritual knowledge to a balanced lifestyle. Students will acquire the skills necessary to form effective teams, resolve conflicts and develop creativity. Furthermore, the study is focused on strategic thinking and its use in stressful situations.

The program is particularly suitable for managers, executives, company owners, staff in personnel departments and for all others who strive for managerial positions or just want to improve.

The MBA Managerial Psychology includes the following beyond the basic and optional modules: Managerial Psychology, Work Life Balance and Conflict Management.
